

Allianz Cyber Security

Allianz Cyber Security invests in global equity markets, focusing on companies that should benefit from, or are related to, the “Cyber Security” theme. Cyber security includes everything from computer security and disaster recovery to end-user training.

Our lives are increasingly digital. From computers to smartphones, technology is an integral part of our every day lives. The Internet-of-Things (IoT), which includes innovations such as autonomous driving, networked health services and smart homes, for example, will make our lives easier in many ways but also increasingly vulnerable.

While a cyber security breach is problematic for private users, it can threaten the very existence of companies.

The average cost of a data leak in 2023 was at a record high of around USD 4.45 million.¹

On average, in 2022 it took around 212 days for a data leak to be detected at all.¹

For companies this could mean: serious damage to their reputation; loss of investors; loss of customers; and severe penalties from regulators.

As a result, there is only one option for companies – they have to invest in cyber security.

Why Allianz Cyber Security

Exposure to a major growth theme
Cyber security has numerous growth drivers, both in the short and long term. The megatrend “Digitalisation” makes our digital lives more vulnerable, ultimately increasing the need for cyber security. This has been accelerated by the Covid-19 pandemic, as digitisation has increased much faster than anticipated.

2. Pure-play exposure to cyber security companies with a mid-cap bias

The fund seeks to identify secular winners that benefit from long-term growth tailwinds. It invests in a range of 30–60 security stocks, mostly pure play, offering a concentrated, high-conviction portfolio.

3. One of the longest track records in the cyber security space

With over 20 years of experience, the fund management team has one of the longest track records of engaging with cyber security stocks.
