

Allianz Dynamic Asian High Yield Bond

Monthly commentary

Investment Objective

The Fund aims at long-term capital growth and income by investing in high yield rated debt securities of Asian bond markets.

What Happened in April

April was a volatile month for all asset classes as the US administration unleashed higher-than-expected tariffs on the world. While attention was initially focused on Canada and Mexico, it later spread to all nations and China in particular bore the highest rates. The US administration later granted a 90-day reprieve on higher tariffs to all nations except China and this provided support for risk assets. China retaliated with tariffs on imports from the US and injected RMB 500 billion of capital in its four largest banks to stabilise sentiment. Towards the end of the month, there were tentative signs of a potential détente between the US and China as both sides expressed willingness to discuss the easing of trade tensions. Despite the weakening in investor sentiment for the month, economic data released in April, for example China's Q1 gross domestic product (GDP) growth at 5.4% versus expectations of 5.2%, was generally stronger than expected due to front loading of orders ahead of "Liberation Day" in April.

Asian credit (JP Morgan Asia Credit Index – Composite) was flat for the month of April. High yield (HY) credits corrected by -1.7%, as the positive interest rate return of 0.4% was not sufficient to offset the negative spread return of -2.1%.

Following the elevated issuance in March ahead of "Liberation Day" in April, issuance for April was a more muted USD 25 billion. In conjunction with USD 31 billion of maturities, April was a month of negative net supply. Most of the new issuance was from the Financials sector and rated investment grade (IG). Primary demand was high, and most issues closed above issuance levels.

Asia HY spreads widened in April although the market staged a strong rebound and saw opportunistic buying from the second week of the month. Sri Lanka was the weakest performer as the macro-linked bonds saw a pullback as investors factored in the potential economic impact of tariffs on Sri Lanka's economy. Meanwhile, Pakistan was also weaker due to a flare up in border tensions with India when tourists were allegedly killed by Pakistan-based militants in the Kashmir region.

Despite China being subject to the highest tariffs, Chinese issuers in the HY space were one of the strongest performers in April as the issuers were more domestic focused and not directly affected by the tariffs. There was also less technical selling pressure on these bonds as there are fewer short-term holders of the bonds. Well capitalised Thai Financials and the domestically focused Macau Gaming sector were also more insulated from the correction.

Portfolio Review

The Fund's performance was primarily driven by our positive security selection in India and Sri Lanka, which compensated for a negative allocation effect from Hong Kong and China. Our use of cash to control the beta of the portfolio also contributed positively to performance. We remain long carry in the Fund and expect security selection to be the key long-term positive contributor. Portfolio turnover has been low as we maintain our defensive positioning and look for opportunities to increase our exposure again.

Market Outlook

Macro sentiment is likely to continue to be volatile driven by unpredictable US policies. While economic data has generally been stronger than expected thus far, upcoming economic releases together with earnings guidance over the next few months should bear close scrutiny as the market looks for signs of slowdown and inflation driven by the trade tariffs. In trade-dependent Asia, many countries have begun bilateral negotiations with the US to reduce tariffs while China has been proactive in rolling out policy support. As the trade tariffs are global and not specific to Asia, we continue to expect Asia to lead growth in 2025.

The latest corporate earnings have shown evidence of stable to improving profitability and decreasing leverage with businesses right-sizing across most sectors in the Asian credit space. Spreads are more attractive now while solid credit fundamentals and strong technicals should continue to support Asian credit valuation. With attractive all-in yields, we remain constructive on Asia credit with a slight preference to HY over IG and expect carry and security selection to be the key positive contributors to performance.

Connect with Us

sg.allianzgi.com

+65 6438 0828

Search more

Allianz Global Investors

Like us on Facebook Allianz Global Investors Singapore

Connect on LinkedIn Allianz Global Investors

Subscribe to YouTube channel Allianz Global Investors

All data are sourced from Bloomberg and Allianz Global Investors as at 30 April 2025 unless otherwise stated.

The information presented here is intended for general circulation and does not constitute a recommendation to anyone; it also has not taken into account the specific investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs of any particular person. Information herein is based on sources we believe to be accurate and reliable as at the date it was made. We reserve the right to revise any information herein at any time without notice. No offer or solicitation to buy or sell securities and no investment advice or recommendation is made herein. In making investment decisions, investors should not rely solely on this publication but should seek independent professional advice. However, if you choose not to seek professional advice, you should consider the suitability of the product for yourself. Past performance of the fund manager(s) and the fund is not indicative of future performance. Prices of units in the Fund and the income from them, if any, may fall as well as rise and cannot be guaranteed. Distribution payments of the Fund, where applicable, may at the sole discretion of the Manager, be made out of either income and/or net capital gains or capital of the Fund. As a result of the payment, the Fund's net asset value is expected to be immediately reduced. The dividend yields and payouts are not guaranteed and might change depending on the market conditions or at the Manager's discretion; past payout yields and payments do not represent future payout yields and payments. Investment involves risks including the possible loss of principal amount invested and risks associated with investment in emerging and less developed markets. The Fund may invest in financial derivative instruments and/or structured products and be subject to various risks (including counterparty, liquidity, credit and market risks etc.). Investing in fixed income instruments (if applicable) may expose investors to various risks, including but not limited to creditworthiness, interest rate, liquidity and restricted flexibility risks. Changes to the economic environment and market conditions may affect these risks, resulting in an adverse effect to the value of the investment. During periods of rising nominal interest rates, the values of fixed income instruments (including short positions with respect to fixed income instruments) are generally expected to decline. Conversely, during periods of declining interest rates, the values are generally expected to rise. Liquidity risk may possibly delay or prevent account withdrawals or redemptions. Past performance, or any prediction, projection or forecast, is not indicative of future performance. Investors should read the Prospectus obtainable from Allianz Global Investors Singapore Limited or any of its appointed distributors for further details including the risk factors, before investing. The duplication, publication, extraction, or transmission of the contents, irrespective of the form is not permitted, except for the case of explicit permission by Allianz Global Investors. This publication has not been reviewed by the Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS). MAS authorization/recognition is not a recommendation or endorsement. The issuer of this publication is Allianz Global Investors Singapore Limited (79 Robinson Road, #09-03, Singapore 068897, Company Registration No. 199907169Z).